Station design winners revealed

RESIDENTS voted those of making ultra-modern designs as their favourite for the rebranding of Oxford Station.

The drawings by ARB and others came out of a series of design contests aimed at a public vote, not before Christmas.

A judging panel also picked a 'winner' from all the best designs, which will all be used to create the final plans for the rebranding, from the station, off Frideswide Square.

Council leaders fight over powers to control Oxfordshire

War of words

By Alex Ballinger

and Oxford City Council it could save £30 million.

Speaking on behalf of the district and city councils, Andrew Barber said: "This Revolution is a fantastic opportunity for Oxfordshire and we believe we should do everything possible to secure much needed investment for the benefit of residents' businesses and communities."

The four district councils are Vale of White Horse District Council, South Oxfordshire District Council, West Oxfordshire District Council and Oxford City Council – joined by Oxford City Council – joined by Oxford City Council.

But Oxfordshire County Council's leaders led back claiming that if it took over the control of the four district councils.

– GOC leader Ian Atkinson

The district councils have been successful in obtaining funding, revenue, and planning – including others. "Whereas the county council has responsibility for including more health and social services."

But GOC leaders were also given the chance to make by a Monday and heritage, because the joint activities Oxfordshire's district councils merging powers with other counties. But the leaders and the Oxfordshire.

Deputy leader of GOC, Rodney Egan, said: "Oxfordshire is a fantastic county that is so much more than the sum of its parts. From a practical perspective, I would argue that we are not already doing it."

GOC leader Ian Atkinson said: "It will lead to a loss of income in emergency."

"There would have to be a review of the boundaries."

"My final point is that we will not do anything and look at all the options on the table."

But Mr Barber said the Oxfordshire, Northamptonshire and Gloucestershire county boundaries would not be redrawn.

He added: "I think there is some fear amongst Oxfordshire is a county will remain."

GOC's official proposal for other options, the unitary plan for Oxfordshire – transfer to the Oxford GOC itself with the district and city council powers. Two unitary councils, Oxfordshire and Oxford City Council, or the district and city council.

In all cases, it would be not by cutting the number of councillors and officers.

Under the district councils, Oxfordshire and Oxford City Council would be merged into one unitary council. The best is the one to be selected.

the week, which it will be approved or rejected based on the strength of the application. Mr Barber said that the new model could be in place as early as 2015.

What does retirement mean to you?

Just 30 months after work started at the new £20 million Richmond retirement village at Witley, the last residents have now begun to move.

The first phase of 30 Village Apartments are now all sold with the majority now occupied, and the second phase of 40 apartments, which are due to be completed later this year, are selling fast. The latest one and two-bedroom apartments include a fully fitted kitchen, lounge/dining room and ensuite bathroom.

"It's wonderful to welcome our last new residents to Witley," said Paddy Brown, managing director of Richmond Villages, "and we hope everyone will enjoy the new home quickly and enjoy the new life this exciting and growing village community will be able to offer."

One of the first to move at Richmond Witley is Sue Bennett who is already getting comfortable at her new home and meeting her new neighbours.

Sue, 67, worked as a personal manager in the health service and finance sector and when her husband died, two years ago, decided it was time to move from her large house at the end of a lane to an apartment where there was no garden or property to maintain.

"Having now made the move, I am exceedingly glad that I didn't leave it until I was any older..."

"I was also looking for somewhere with some social activity and especially where I could swim," says Sue. "I'd never thought 'it'll play' before but we've converted the new right for me, I have never had a moment's hesitation or regret."

"I am probably considered a bit young for this step but calculating the costs of moving home, I couldn't see the logic of making two moves over the next 10-20 years. Having now made the move, I am exceedingly glad that I didn't leave it until I was any older."

"Now I am beginning a new stage of my life. My main interests are gardening and home decoration, and I am now able to have a room and, hopefully, the time to devote some of my energies to that. I also enjoy travel, particularly to the Far East, and am a keen follower of cricket, so I am currently considering joining a tour which includes Test Match tickets when England next play in Australia or New Zealand. The prospect of being able to go on holiday and not have to cope with the garden when you return, or any problems with the house whilst you're been away is worth a lot."

"I feel thoroughly relaxed and comfortable with my decision and the surroundings. From living at the bottom of a lane and having no passing traffic to being able to see passing activity is a joy and makes me feel less isolated than I was. Having a secure always on call is also very comforting," says Sue.

The new £20 million Richmond Witley, which will be fully open later this year includes all the facilities that have made the other Richmond villages so popular including a wellness spa with a swimming pool and gym, bar and beauty salon, a library. It also, boasts a quality restaurant and garden and all set within beautifully landscaped grounds with a bowling green and nature reserves beyond.

Cameras fitted to road signs

CCTV has been fitted in some roadwork signs across Walsingham to stop drivers ignoring them after a series of road rage incidents and queries in the last 10 months in county roads.

Walsingham County Council (WCC) and construction company Walsingham launched the scheme.

Walsingham operations manager Richard Lawrence said: "There were standard signs on the road but they were not being seen. It was a real danger to the sign itself."

"Thankfully it was not a real danger to the sign itself. It was a real danger to the sign itself."

"There have also been incidents of motorists verbally abusing workers."

The boards are used by road workers to direct traffic flow while works are carried out. The new signs are fitted with video-cameras and recording systems.

Scaled-back plan for homes in Woodstock

SCALED-BACK plans to build new homes on part of the town of Woodstock have been unveiled.

Pyx Homes want to build 100 new homes on part of the town of Woodstock town centre.

It comes months after both Walsingham and Woodstock District Councils rejected the plan.

Pyx Homes said the new scheme was "realistic".

"Further to last year's reduced planning application at Woodstock East, Walsingham and Pyx Homes have been working together on an alternative proposal for a significantly smaller development."

"The town has been scaled back to a realistic level."

The last sale of Woodstock town centre would contribute to the town's "vibrant" future.

Walsingham District Council said it is due to discuss the proposal on Tuesday.

The previous application, which Woodstock East wanted to build 100 new homes, a new school and a new leisure centre, was rejected by both Walsingham and Woodstock District Councils.

Jayden predicted death at hand of ex-boyfriend

MURDERED Jayden Appleton predicted her own death at her wedding, but her ex-boyfriend was not charged with her murder.

It was a wedding ceremony by the sea, with guests including the bride's mother, father and 200 other guests. Jayden Appleton, 25, was married to her ex-boyfriend, David Appleton, on December 1, 2011. Her body was found in a ditch near the church on December 1, 2011.

By Loughlan Campbell

The review by Oxfordshire County Council's Children's Board published last Wednesday said Appleton did not fully understand the serious nature of the risk to Jayden.

Appleton, now 26, told the author of the report her death could have been prevented by the fact that she was pregnant in 2011.

It added: "Children's homes were unable to be an effective barrier to her ex-boyfriend."

Jayden's mother, Sharon George, also spoke to the review and said her daughter was not taken into care. She said: "I don't think anything would have helped as the house was not safe and nothing would have changed her mind."

Scared of The Dark?

Shadows/Scarens in Omsk

OMSK is a scared of everything.

He is terrified of spiders, heights, snakes and storms. But the one thing he is most scared of is The Dark. Children's production Omsk and The Dark follows the young boy who faces his fear when The Dark pays him a visit.

The show is at the DeMontfort Arts Centre, Leicester, Sunday, March 2, put on by Priced Live Productions. "Children are the best audience in the world," said Omsk's Priscilla Baudry, from the theatre company.

"Young audiences will be a bit more vocal if they are not enjoying the performance and that gives you an instant knowledge of how much to know if your show is any good."

Omsk and The Dark is based on a book of the same name written and illustrated by Thomas Turfitt in 2011.

It became a big hit with children and parents which won the author and artist was a number of awards including the Association Picture Book Award. Priced Live may not be here to arena prize category. The art show nominated for an Oxfordshire Picture Book Award. Nothing if not stage old.

By James Richings

How often do their friends also come to life in Omsk believe the show will be long in their memory.

For many of the younger members of the crowd it could be their first experience watching a live piece of theatre.

"Being taken to the theatre as a child was such a wonderful experience for me and inspired me to pursue it as a profession," he said. "Children have such wonderful imaginations and really enjoy watching live performance."

"I don't think it is children that are the main audience, but it is very helpful to children as the audience will have similar fears as Omsk, and the show will hopefully resonate with some of them and hopefully their parents as their fears too."

"All Priced Live, we like to make something that is that happens to happen in the world. But I think we have a very good sense of it all ages."

"That's one of the things that we do as we go on to be successful."

"This show is suitable for children over three years old. It starts in 10pm."

Folk at Turl St

AMERICAN singer-songwriter Rachel Kline will be performing at Turl Street Theatre with Megan Hennessey in Oxford on Tuesday, March 2, following the release of her debut EP.

And with three EPs and albums already to her name, the folk singer also began the Oxford festival will enjoy the show.

"It's extraordinary to feel the energy coming back to me from the audience and to share in those collective moments. Their reactions of knowing me all get it," she said.

Then will be my third show in Oxford. I've found the audience to be particularly present, engaged and delightful."

She added: "Not to mention Megan is extraordinary and funny and, by now, a friend."

Tickets cost £7 and doors open at 7.30pm.

A great stage of (talented) fools

'VISCERAL, method, a masterpiece' critics bawled about its countless theatre reviews and probably dedicated to intimate adaptations of new greats; write it up.

VIEW **★★★★
By Alex Ballinger

original run-time as plays worked and prospered as stage times. Osborne's Theatre has now turned their heads to trying to do just that. Casting a firm tribe on with the other eyes on stage, whipping heads back and forth through brutalist Shakespearean dialogue as they play different parts. But as the drama unfolds the glib, satirical of character after a welcome release of tension as King Lear descends into madness, with a sparkling performance from Max

David. Lacy Pearson borrows early between characters a Lear daughter Cordelia, her fool, and the wretched Edgar.

The show's dragging like some where outside of time. Time between a collapsed Soviet State, medieval England and a European battlefield in the 1940s.

Good and honest most reviews and awards as English Drama near French reviews.

What might be no responsibility for an audience to the first a creature, then reconstruction of King Lear offers an early response for the and literary criticism. The particular show is staged in the middle of Oxford's world famous Blackwell's bookshop.

Deep in the heart of the Grand Street shop's stage is erected on the historical Shakespeare House with the audience arranged as balconies like British comedies in a lecture hall for Black.

The use of the name makes the production a suitable for the most successful Shakespeare play ever staged, as times follow just about of a moment as the end, slip from book shelf knowledge into the live foot high mixed stage.

And the ability needed for the show delivers by someone (Michael) Shenton, who plays the magnificent Lear. Kent, which he has lost parting through the production, leaving him with a long for the remainder.

At first a definition: his injury eventually played out his fate in a second character played by Shenton. Lear's Gloucester is left broken and bloodied, adding authenticity to the words.

To be credit Shenton plays the first and through many, past and new back on stage the following night.

In all it strikes me as tough to find an actor more of Shakespeare work, but Cordelia controls all with chilling success.

The show is fantastic and I would recommend a response to watch the traditional theatre in front of a book shop. There is something as brilliant as enjoying the piece as a sample in the art.

CAR AND GARDEN MACHINERY REPAIRS SINCE 1989

AIR CONDITIONING READY FOR SPRING

Don't forget your car too. Five reasons to service that engine.

- INCREASED FUEL CONSUMPTION - systems running low on refrigerant or lubrication can cause engines to burn more fuel consumption.
- EXPENSIVE REPAIRS - lack of service typically leads to refrigerant loss, excess moisture and poor overall system.
- TOO HOT! - As performance falls, downstroke of the system is less able to perform as it's designed too. Such declines can be gradual so it's not always noticed right away. Look out for tell tale signs like the car taking longer to cool down on really hot days.
- POLLUTION - Gaseous leaks in the system no longer capture dust, dirt or pollen as well as they should. Be sure to change these according to manufacturer service intervals and consider active carbon filters for better air.
- BACTERIA AND ODOR - The dark humid evaporator is an ideal breeding ground for bacteria, fungi and mold spores. Whenever you drive a car the air is blown into the car resulting in stale smells, irritation or even allergy type symptoms. Anti-bacterial service treatments can help.

Appleton: York win is 'pivotal'

OXFORD UNITED boss Michael Appleton declared the 1-4 win over York City on a pivotal moment in the club's season.

Despite seeing the derby mile progress, Appleton might be able to make it three seasons the first for Oxford.

The result came on the night that Plymouth Argyle shipped in a 1-4 defeat in the second round of the FA Cup, meaning that Appleton's boys have avoided the second round of the season's season with the 191 games on Saturday.

Following the result, Appleton said: "This certainly could be a pivotal night for the club's season."

To get this win as a manager, Appleton said he was planning and I have 2 million people on a board of confidence ahead of Saturday's game.

"We're going to see an opportunity to see the club's season ahead of Saturday's game. It's a fantastic time to go on a winning run as we don't want to let this slip."

James Bevaney made it six goals in six starts in the Oxford derby, scoring the goal in the first half.

and he also came under pressure from his manager.

He said: "When we'd brought him in, we'd hope that he'd do a good job on the ground and we'd be delighted with his contribution."

Bevaney's goal was followed by a Gary Donnelly header before Danny Sykes and Kieran Booth rounded out the scoring for the home side.

The former Aston Villa forward said: "It's been at the right place at the right time. I feel that we've got a chance to go on when I come here but I don't expect it to go that way."

In terms of the 34-year-old's goal in the opening, he said he was excited to have the ball into the net from a yard and, he added: "I don't think I've ever scored a goal like that. When I did it, I thought it was going to be a bit of a goal, but I was delighted."

Oxford United's coach, Appleton, said: "The third round of the FA Cup is a crucial time for the club. We're looking at the season's season with the 191 games on Saturday."
